America's Waterfront Revival

Port Authorities and Urban Redevelopment

INFORMATION

September 21, 2009, 6pm
Philadelphia Center for Architecture
1218 Arch Street, Philadelphia, PA

Peter Hendee Brown, University of Minnesota, will discuss his book, America's Waterfront Revival, an examination of the role of the nation's industrial-era port authorities in shaping today's cities. Respondents to his talk will be:

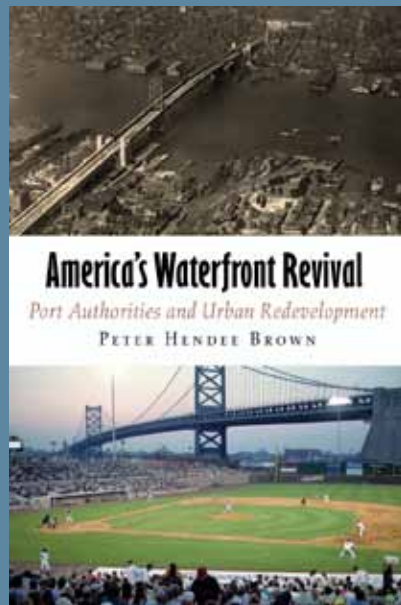

Peter Angelides Vice President and Director, Econsult Corporation

Tom Corcoran President and CEO, Cooper's Ferry Development Association

Steven Fluharty Associate Vice Provost for Research, University of Pennsylvania

The presentation will be followed by a book signing and reception. Books will be available to purchase. Continuing education credits are available for AIA members attending the talk.

RSVP by September 18th to penniur@pobox.upenn.edu

This talk is part of the "Fall 2009 Urban Book Talk Series" co-sponsored by Penn IUR, PennDesign's Historic Preservation Program and AIA Philadelphia.

The final talk of the series is by Randall Mason about The Once and Future New York: Historic Preservation and the Modern City on November 11th at the Philadelphia Center for Architecture.
